The Mirror of the Vanoise

The mountains and glaciers of the Vanoise have placed a mirror amid the flowering grass of the alpine pastures. In it, they admire their reflection, adorned with the glitter of the golden sun tickling the water. Welcome to Blanc Lake!

Along the way

Evading the crowds that eagerly follow the main trail, you'll be one of the privileged few who'll meet Saint-Antoine three times during your short ascent from the Coëtet parking lot. Look for the saint nestled in an oratory or a crevice in the rock face. You'll recognise him by his T-shaped cross and bell.

You'll come across some beautiful chalets along the way, as well as the chapel of Sainte Marguerite, protector of alpine pastures and pregnant women.

The cheerful melodies of birdsong and the shrill whistling of marmots make a delightful soundtrack to your hike, to the beat of gravel steadily crunching underfoot.

Raise your head and feast your eyes on magnificent views of Dent Parraché and the glaciers of the Vanoise. As you rest on the riverbank, take a moment to admire the peaks reflected in the crystal-clear waters of this glacial lake.

The little extra

Fancy returning to Bellecombe along the most traditional route? That way, you can create your own personalised loop and fully enjoy the area from every angle.
