A stroll through the village centres

A leisurely stroll to wander around the typical narrow streets of mountain villages. This walk gives you a splendid blend of styles, combining architectural heritage and the idyllic atmosphere of the Chemin du Petit Bonheur.

Along the way

Crossing the Verney plunges you into history, so that you can picture exactly how life used to be here. Mountain villages are steeped in remnants of days gone by, each with its typical washhouse, bread oven, and narrow alleys where only the villagers would pass.

And the inhabitants of Châtel won't spoil the effect. With no running water or electricity, this hamlet makes you feel like you've stepped into the past. The White Stream waterfall struggles in times of drought, but even in the height of summer, it offers an oasis of freshness to delight both young and old.

Amongst snow-covered heather and pine forests, step onto Chemin du Petit Bonheur (Path of Little Pleasures), a haven of tranquility that you won't want to leave.

The little extra

But what is this path that brings you so many little pleasures?

You can explore it all through the Haute Maurienne Vanoise valley and enjoy unique experiences along the way.

Head to the tourist offices to select your stages on the specific Chemin du Petit Bonheur map.
